

ERASMUS+: QUESTIONNAIRE FOR FHS STUDENTS

Academic year and semester: Winter semester 2023\2024
Study programme at FHS: Deutsche und französische Philosophie
Name of the host university: Bergische Universität Wuppertal
Faculty/department at the host university: Faculty of Philosophie

Is it possible to attend courses offered by other faculties than the one where you were enrolled?

Yes, you could easily have access to other courses by other faculties without credit.

Does the host university require any proof of language competence? If so, what type?

Not officially. But you must have the ability to speak, talk and listen. That actually require your German level higher than B2 to follow the courses.

Does the host university/city/country or any local organisation offer any scholarships for international students?

I have received one scholarship with 600 Euro each month from Charles University and it's enough for life in Germany.

Could you provide any websites that could help the students to find more information concerning the university, courses, etc.?

<https://studiloewe.uni-wuppertal.de>

How would you evaluate the difficulty of studies at the host university in comparison with FHS?

It's similar, but the student must fit the German education system, you must get credits from modules and you must register the exam.

What aspects of studies at the host university would you evaluate more/less positively with regard to FHS?

The German faculty is much more bigger and have more teachers. Of course more courses and choices.

How would you evaluate the support from the host International office in general?

International office from our site is perfect helpful. In German is awful, they don't have responsibility for students.

Do you have any other useful information for the FHS students who are interested in studying at this university?

Prepare and contact as early as possible. The German site responses very late.

Email (your email address will be available to our students only, it won't be published on our website):
